1/2 inch for fruits, pickles, and tomatoes processed in a water-bath canner
1 to 1 1/4 inches for vegetables, meats, or other products processed in a pressure canner.
8. Food should be packed into the jar in such a way that heat can easily penetrate throughout the jar's contents. This means there must be proper balance of solids and liquids. Tightly packed solids make it difficult for heat to penetrate throughout the mass.
9. There should be enough liquid present so that liquid covers the product and prevents the jar from being solid, yet there should not be excess liquid.

Preservation Rules Continued:

10. Although sealing jelly with paraffin was once a standard practice, this is no longer recommended, and will NOT be allowed to enter in the fair.

11. Containers:

Products should be in a Mason-type, standard size (1/2 pint, pint, or quart), clear canning jar. Regular or wide-mouth styles may be used, but containers must have a threaded top with a self-sealing, two-piece metal lid.

Commercial jars, like the ones used for mayonnaise, peanut butter, jelly, etc are not recommended for home canning. Since they are much more likely to break during processing and are less likely to seal properly, they are NOT allowed for competition in fairs. If jars of this type are entered, they will not be judged.

Also, if jars were purchased in the canning section of a store but do not specify that they are Mason-type jars either on the jar itself or on the box, they are not allowed for competition. They may be safe for home canning, but no current USDA recommendations exist for their use. Colored jars are also excluded.

Two-piece lids consist of a flat metal lid held in place by a metal band. Lids must be brand new. Bands should be clean and free of rust. They should not be bent or misshapen. The old style bail-type closures and porcelain-lined zinc caps are not acceptable. Plastic lids may be safe for home canning, but are NOT allowed for competition, as it is impossible to detect a correct seal.

Jars should be clean and free of mineral deposits. The jars will be tested to see that the jar has a seal. This is usually done by pressing the middle of the lid with a finger. If the lid springs up when the finger is removed, the lid is not sealed. An alternative test would be to hold the jar at eye level and look across the lid. A sealed lid should appear curved down in the center, not flat or bulging.

Models & 3-D Printing

All models require exhibitor to assemble. The creation of a 3-D printed object is achieved using additive processes. In an additive process, an object is created by laying down successive layers of material until the object is formed: each of these layers can be seen as a thinly sliced, horizontal cross section of the eventual object. It is used to prototype inventions, create parts for broken items and make art. Create your own 3-D printed object or explore the possibilities with 3-D created art.

Guidelines:

1. Maximum size—12 inches in any direction
2. The finished piece must be from an original design you created
3. No pre-made or open sourced 3-D source files are allowed
